Television Broadcast Schedule Confirmed for CONCACAF Champions League Semifinals

MIAMI (Monday, March 31, 2014) – The Confederation of North, Central America and Caribbean Association Football (CONCACAF) released today the broadcast schedule for the 2013-14 CONCACAF Champions League semifinals, which kick off on April 1.

TV viewers and soccer aficionados in markets across the Confederation will be able to watch live as CONCACAF's final four – Costa Rican club Alajuelense and Mexican clubs Cruz Azul, Club Tijuana and Toluca FC – battle for a prized ticket to the 2014 FIFA Club World Cup in Morocco.

Fans in the US will be able to view the semifinal games on Fox Sports 2 in English, or on Univision Deportes Network and Galavision in Spanish. In Mexico, as well as parts of Central America and the Caribbean, matches will be shown on Fox Sports and Fox Sports 2.

In addition, the two games involving Costa Rican club LD Alajuelense will be broadcast live in Costa Rica on Repretel. Viewers in Canada can also tune into all four matches on SportsNet World.

Fans will additionally have access to radio broadcasts of all the semifinal games on the ESPN Deportes Radio network, in all the countries reached by the network Confederation-wide.
